Abstract: This article says that our youth should know the laws, the great changes in government, the freedoms given to people and citizens.

Keywords: democratic reforms, human rights, civil society, legal literacy.

It is known that in our country special attention is paid to the issues of national-spiritual revival, enrichment of consciousness and worldview of our youth based on national values, protection of our national spirituality from various threats, education of youth in the spirit of openness. thinking, creative, enterprising, honest and enthusiastic, able to make the right decisions in problem situations. One of the priorities of the policy of our state is the manifestation of attention and care for young people in order to receive a comprehensive education, acquire a profession and grow up in the spirit of respect for our national traditions and values. After all, in today's complex and stressful era of globalization and rapid changes, it is important to raise the morale of the youth of our country and protect them from various threats, to make clear the essence of the processes taking place in the international arena. , to have an unbiased and independent opinion about these realities, to increase attention to young people, to educate them in issues such as art, physical education and sports, teaching them skills in the use of information technology, popularizing reading among young people, increasing the employment of women are of urgent importance. For example, on December 27, 2019, President of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev held a meeting with youth at the school named after Muhammad al-Khwarizmi.

The formation and strengthening of civil society in our country, the deepening of democratic reforms, the improvement of its legal foundations, legal foundations, the political and legal activity of a citizen, his level of consciousness and knowledge are inextricably linked. Today, the demand and need for legal knowledge and culture in our country is increasing. After all, the higher the legal knowledge, culture and spirituality of the population, the stronger the rule of law will be, the stronger and more stable our independence will be. Legal culture means the level of legislation in society, the level of awareness of the population about existing laws, people's adherence to legal norms and intolerance towards those who do not comply with them.

The legal culture of a society is considered as a type of social culture that reflects a certain level of legal awareness, legality, improvement of laws and legal experience, and contains all the wealth created by mankind in the field of law. The legal culture of society is considered as the basis for ensuring the freedom and security of the individual, human rights, legal protection and social activity. Scientists associate legal culture with the level of positive law and show that a person's legal culture is also measured by its compliance with this positive law. "The legal culture of the individual is a necessary condition and the first creator of the legal culture of society, its purpose and component. At the same time, it is also an aspect of the legal development of a person, which is reflected in the level of his legal activity. Depending on the specific level of the legal status of a society, it constitutes its important basis and relies on it. The legal culture of a person requires his positive sense of justice in practice. Organizes creative activity in the field of law, corresponding to the progressive achievements of society, as a result of which there is a constant legal enrichment of the individual. So, society and the legal culture of a person are social and legal realities that are dialectically formed and developed.

In order to improve the legal culture in society, contacts have been established with local government bodies. Cooperation is carried out through educational institutions. Their work plans define activities that will be carried out in cooperation with the local court, the prosecutor's office and the internal affairs bodies. In addition, plans for joint work on the education of young people are being developed, and events are organized on this basis. In our country, educational programs and regulatory educational criteria have been developed to ensure legal education and legal education in higher educational institutions and other educational institutions. All this is one of the main goals of legal education and training in the formation of the legal consciousness of young people, instilling in them a deep respect for the requirements of society, the laws of the state, national traditions and our personnel.

In addition, the Ministry of Justice of the Republic of Uzbekistan, the State Press Committee of the Republic of Uzbekistan and other interested organizations are working to coordinate the publication of legal literature and improve the quality of published literature. Because legal literature is the basis of legal education.

Taking this into account, it would be appropriate to make the following suggestions and comments on improving legal education for the development of society:

First, there are problems with providing educational institutions with lawyers. To resolve this issue, it is necessary to strengthen cooperation with higher educational institutions and form a mechanism for attracting their graduates to universities.

Secondly, there are few methodological manuals on legal education and teacher training. In order for teachers to effectively organize training, it is necessary to create the necessary methodological manuals with the involvement of reputable scientists in this field, lawyers and experienced lawyers.

Thirdly, in cooperation with law enforcement agencies and educational institutions, legal educational events are organized among schoolchildren and students. However, little attention is paid to the participation in these events of schoolchildren and students with their own independent thoughts and initiatives.

Fourthly, it cannot be considered sufficient for teachers, pupils and students to publish articles on legal topics in newspapers and magazines. Therefore, it is necessary to increase the participation of young people with advanced experience and talent with articles on legal topics in newspapers and magazines.

Fifth, it is necessary to strengthen the activities of advocacy groups in cooperation with law enforcement agencies and other organizations on the subject of legal education.

The security of our country is the decisive force of today and tomorrow, and the need of the present time is to strengthen the ideological immunity of our youth by protecting them from the influence of various alien and harmful ideas. If we say that this concept should not be armed, but armed, then it is our child who left them in a small state and created conditions for belittling what seemed "brilliant" in his eyes. The only way to get rid of the influence of our sincere youth, pure thoughts and the gradual transformation of our noble ideals into alien ideals, attractive only at first glance, but in fact unpromising, is marifat. Therefore, young people should not forget that we must "fight opinion with opinion, opinion with opinion, ignorance with enlightenment." Only then will the strength of ideological immunity among young people be manifested through respect for national and universal values, cultural heritage, customs, traditions, language, history, faith and loyalty to it. Only then will it protect the nation from some of the threats associated with the process of globalization.
