Abstract

This article discusses the need of the people of the renewed Uzbekistan, first of all, to strengthen in the hearts of young people a sense of belonging to the ongoing transformations, to further increase the effectiveness of spiritual and educational work in this area. Issues related to youth are among the most important not only in Uzbekistan, but also in the international community as a whole. The author emphasizes that today the problem of educating young people is one of the common problems for almost all countries of the world. The article also states that the sustainable development and prosperity of any country depends on the human factor, in particular, the scientific, creative and spiritual potential of the younger generation. In this regard, it is important to ensure the effectiveness of youth policy in Uzbekistan, where the majority of the population is youth.

Today, the problems associated with the life and maturation of young people has become one of the important factors in increasing the sense of responsibility for everyone, setting new goals and plans. Touching on the topic of educating youth, the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Sh. Mirziyoyev said at the 72nd session of the UN General Assembly: "Today's youth is the largest generation in the history of mankind, since there are 2 billion of them. The future and well-being of our planet depends on the kind of people our children grow up to be.

Independence is the deepest understanding that we are a generation of great people living in the spirit of harmony of national and universal values, deepening democratic ideas in the hearts and minds of the younger generation, occupying a worthy place in the world community, and also since building a democratic state and civil society is the key to our national development. "The goal of the new strategy of Uzbekistan is to make our country one of the most developed, stable and growing democracies in the world, where happy and harmonious people live well, the principles of social justice are fully approved" [1, p. 264].

In the process of building a civil society, social activity is a fundamental concept associated with the formation of political, legal, spiritual and social consciousness, in accordance with the principles of this society. The process of social activity is a manifestation of the state in which each person takes his place, comprehending the processes taking place in society on the basis of changes in the public consciousness. In whatever sphere of life of our country is today, in the minds of people in accordance with historical experience, scientific and philosophical heritage, advanced traditions and customs of our people, we are witnesses of this. Also in the constant attention of the head of our state is the education of our youth spiritually and physically mature, highly intelligent people with modern knowledge.

Today, our youth need to observe and actively participate in socio-political processes, to know and observe the rule of law, which is the basis of society, to have an idea about the activities of public organizations in the region. Young people need to be in harmony with the world community while maintaining their moral values, to have an active citizenship, to fully, correctly and timely use the available opportunities and conditions, to develop conscientious work, entrepreneurial qualities and public interest. The public interests of a person arise as his attitude to a particular social system in which he lives, acts and satisfies his needs.

Although the creativity of our great ancestors is focused on the interests of the individual, at the same time, all the changes and innovations taking place in our independent state are primarily intended to serve the future of mankind. The modern education system and ideological harmony based on the national heritage means that in the process of education it is necessary to rely on the spiritual enlightenment of the national heritage.

According to observers, the role and importance of information technologies and information resources in all spheres of the economy and science in general is increasing by the 21st century. At the same time, the potential and capacity of any state on a global scale is measured not by its territorial location, size and population, but by its economic power, military and communication capabilities. These opportunities enter the life of the youth of our country in various forms. Many literatures, publications and media reports say that young people are exposed to various threats because of their interests and aspirations. Websites on the Internet, various groups, religious movements, the threat of "popular culture", drug addiction and more. "Our main task is to create the necessary conditions for young people to show their potential, to prevent the spread of the idea of a "virus" of violence" [2]. Efforts are being made to prevent them from falling into these traps.

The purpose of this creative work is the well-being of our people. At the same time, of course, we count on the strength of our youth. According to the First President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Islam Karimov, we live in a time when "the influence of ideological forces of various kinds is constantly felt, serving the interests of certain countries and political forces" [3]. And the invaluable scientific and spiritual heritage left by the great ancestors must be rooted in their minds and hearts. Because any event that is formed in the process of development of society is called a value, not only because it has a positive value in the past, but also because it is able to create new opportunities for the future. Civil society for us is a social space. In this space, the law dominates, it does not interfere with the self-improvement of a person, but helps. The interests of the individual, his rights and freedoms contribute to their full implementation. The formation of a civic position is also directly related to an increase in the level of legal literacy.

Today the world is undergoing a process of globalization and intercultural mixing. This complex process affects not only young people, but also the worldview of adults. On the one hand, information technology is entering our daily lives so quickly that we can observe it without any numbers. Preserving the hearts and minds of our young generation today, educating them in the spirit of national and universal values, a deep understanding of the meaning and root causes of political processes in the world, accurate information about what is happening around them, the main thing is their own independent opinion, simple, in other words, the achievement of the ability to distinguish white from black should be the main condition and criterion for our educational and spiritual work. The implementation of these processes, of course, means that at the center of these changes are the democratic transformations taking place in our country, and the younger generation, its future. According to the President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev, "We see in the image of youth the meaning of our life, the main fruit of our life. Together with brave young people we will build a new Uzbekistan! One of the main priorities in our development strategy is the education of comprehensively developed, free-thinking, faithful to the Fatherland, strong-willed boys and girls” [1, 262]. I believe that if we all deeply understand this fact and carry out our activities on this basis, we will certainly successfully fulfill the tasks set before us in the field of spirituality and enlightenment. And these results serve as a solid foundation for our achievements in other areas, as well as for the development of our country and the well-being of the people.
